

A message to Adrem's valued Candidates

The current global economic crisis is challenging for most of us, especially our candidates. If you've been made redundant or are looking to move jobs, we will do our best to help you.

We're currently experiencing a huge volume of job applications and cvs at the moment and unfortunately don't have as much time for each individual as we'd like. If we can help you, we will be in touch within 3 working days. If you have applied for a job and don't hear from us within this time, it means at that date there is nothing on our books suitable. But don't give up the ghost. Keep checking our website for new jobs and if you see something you're experienced enough for, keep applying or give us a call.

During these times, Adrem remains committed to providing an exceptional recruitment services for candidates from the design and architecture industries. In our 25 years as recruitment specialists, we've survived the economic downturns of the 1980s and 1990s. We're old hats. We'll do our best to support you, whether that be searching for your next job, providing cv and folio advice or simply offering career guidance.

If you have a question for adrem, go to the 'Ask Adrem' section on our website. Whatever you need to know about the design industry or recruitment, we'll do our best to find the answer for you.
